

Criminal Justice Resource Guide

The following websites will get you started on Criminal Justice information.

<http://www.ojjdp.ncjrs.org/about/employmentopps.html>

The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention is a valuable site where students can research online job opportunities and locate state officials' names and job positions. The latest news about funding and various events are also available.

<http://www.ncjrs.gov>

The National Criminal Justice Reference Service site provides the same information as above, but with a variety of different departments, such as drugs and crime or corrections.

<http://www.idoc.state.il.us/>

This is the Illinois Department of Corrections site. Information about Illinois facilities, the administration and recent news affecting this department are disclosed. Also included are available state jobs, including police and non-police positions.

<http://www.atf.gov/careers/>

At the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives site, students can apply for government positions and learn about upcoming job fairs and salary tables.

<http://www.usdoj.gov/>

This is the official United States Department of Justice homepage. One can gather valuable information about areas such as civil rights and liberties. Employment opportunities are also accessible as well as other main governmental sites from this location.

<http://www.fbi.gov/>

Another important website for those interested in Criminal Justice is the Federal Bureau of Investigations site or the F.B.I. Valuable information about the federal services offered is included, as well as employment opportunities.

<http://www.careercolleges.com/homeland-security.html>

With the events of 9/11, this website provides information about opportunities for careers in criminal justice, working for the department of homeland security.