In celebration of International Peace Day and the recent installation of the Ten Thousand Ripples sculpture by Indira Johnson at theNate, poet and artist Cynthia Woodfolk-Johnson will be presenting an interactive workshop that encourages participants to observe and experience the sculpture, while considering the question: “How do we as individuals create our own ripples of positive change?”

Cynthia Johnson-Woodfolk, Changing Worlds
Cynthia has served as a teaching artist in Chicago schools and community centers for over 20 years and is a dynamic multi-tasking poet and artist. She graduated from Columbia College Chicago with a master's degree in writing.

Ten Thousand Ripples is in its 10th year – for more information go to the artist's website indirajohnson.com
