College of Education – Counseling Programs

Accreditation and Licensure

All three counseling sequences—school counseling, clinical mental health counseling, and marriage and family counseling—are accredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Counselor Education and Related Programs (CACREP).

The Illinois State Board of Education (ISBE) has approved the School Counseling sequence as leading to the Professional Educator License-Endorsed in School Counseling. Applicants for this license must hold, or be eligible for, a standard Illinois teaching license or have completed the GSU or equivalent teaching competency courses.

Students applying for certification must pass the Illinois certification tests in basic skills and in school counseling. In addition, the School Counseling program is one of several programs which together comprise the GSU professional education unit, which is fully accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) as one of its constituent programs.

Certification, Licensure, and Endorsement

Students graduating from a CACREP approved program are eligible to take the National Counselor Certification examination during internship or upon graduation. In addition, The Illinois State Board of Education (ISBE) has approved the School Counseling sequence as leading to the Professional Educator License-Endorsed in School Counseling. GSU counseling degree seeking students who wish to be recommended for Professional Educator License-Endorsed in School Counseling shall either

1. hold or be qualified to hold a teaching certificate or
2. have completed the GSU or equivalent teaching competence courses.

The MA in Counseling program adopted the following program change: "Students must complete all core and sequence coursework with a "B" or better. If a grade is below a B, that course must be retaken. Any course with less than a B cannot be used as a prerequisite for another course until it is retaken".

The Clinical Mental Health sequence changed COUN 7633 from Community Counseling to Clinical Mental Health Counseling, Community Counseling and Professional Orientation.

Student Outcome Assessment

A. Graduate Program Advisory Council

Each year the GSU counseling program conducts a meeting of its advisory council. This meeting is designed to enlist the support of community members who serve our program and are a part of the counseling profession to give feedback to the counseling program faculty on how we are doing as a program and how we can improve our training program to better meet the needs of the community and profession.

B. Counseling Program Graduate Survey

Graduates of the counseling program are surveyed after they have successfully defended their portfolios and graduated from the program. The results of this grouping of surveys are incorporated into the program for improvement and feedback.

C. GSU Counseling Program Employer Survey

In academic year 2004-2005, Governors State University's counseling program began conducting their assessment of the employers who hired our graduates over the past three or more years. The employer surveys returned to the GSU counseling program overwhelmingly rated our graduates satisfactorily. Each sequence was represented in the survey of employers and the results are in. GSU graduates have maintained a favorable impression in the each sequence taught and continue to serve the profession competently while maintaining the reputation of the GSU counseling program.

D. Site Supervisor Training Meeting

Each year the counseling program at GSU hosts a training meeting for our site supervisors. This meeting is designed to provide training to all of our site supervisors that represent each sequence that we have at GSU.

E. Counseling Program Faculty Meetings

Each month during the academic year the counseling program holds a meeting to discuss current and future issues within the counseling program. The meetings that we hold are held to manage the program according to our accreditation needs, student issues and course scheduling.

F. Internship Oral Defense

To graduate from the counseling program at GSU each sequence requires an oral defense of their internship which is reviewed by three tenure or tenure-track faculty members. Each student is tasked to meet with their chair of their internship and determine a date and time to defend their work. Students are asked to complete a portfolio inclusive of their internship experiences. Appendix F holds the requirements for internship portfolios for all sequences. The evidence room will hold examples of graduate portfolios completed by our graduates.

G. National Counselor Examinations (NCE)

In Illinois graduates are required to take the National Counselor Exam as part of their licensing. NCE is used to examine our course content and our overall ability to determine if our pedagogical methods are in league with national standards. The NCE serves as our litmus test for our teaching and program requirements.

H. Course Curriculum Surveys

Each semester students are asked to evaluate the faculty member responsible for their courses. GSU uses a one page evaluation form of standard questions that also allow for the professor to add additional questions. Surveys are used by the Chair of the Division to assist professors with their retention packets as well as supervision and feedback. Each professor receives their feedback from the students confidentially from the University. Professors maintain their own record of evaluations for their personal growth and development.
